…among the several articles of her philan…ropic mission, Miss Mary Carpenter seems

…ent, the Education of the Females of India.
…the hans on which the regeneration of In-…rests. Unlike the paradoxical fact that …histry was the wife daughter of Jupiter …her, Alchemy, to make the people of India a …and educated. Education, which is being …ed in this country falls to the share of the …portion of India, and the infant efforts of …few educated men favorably disposed to the …ve of female education are but a drop of …er to the ocean. The system of imparting …ge to the natives of India, which the …besides, for inferior to the which the …y missionary has begun to introduce on …ropean models. According to her experienced

…owledge of female education, education to
…owledge of female education, education to
…rules should be given through female teachers, …I on this principle she has succeeded in her …deavour in establishing normal schools, …ich though at present in their bud, will …in expand into luxuriant foliage. It de-…ods with our people now to bring her dis…interested and philanthropic labours on their …behalf to a successful issue. Aid in the shape …of money, though not the least requisite for …the furtherance of the object, encouraging …females in all the stages of their lives under …circumstances to join the schools or …suitable circumstances of instruction, is the first re…quisite requirement to support and nourish her attempts …for our females. It is extremely to be re…gretted that even our educated men do not …attach that importance to female education, …which they ought to do in justice to the feeble …and dependent natures of that sex. Superficial …knowledge of reading, writing, and arithmetic is …all that they consider should complete their educa…tion; beyond it they think the fair sex is in…capable of advancing. We do not assume the …ancient and modern annals of Europe can be …given of the high intellectual attainments of …women. There is not a branch of knowledge, …however abstract or complex, which none of the …modern European ladies have not thoroughly …studied. Public prints every day furnish us …with an account of the progress which the …females of Europe and America are making in …knowledge. Besides scientific and philosophical …subjects, which they are well conversant, …there is not an overland mail but brings to …India every time new sensation novels and …other works written by female authors.

Of course, we are aware, all this education is not intended to make women what Goldsmith would call "petticoated philosophers, blustering housives, or virago queens." It is designed to …make the virgin modest, the wife prudent, or …the matron careful. We cannot better express …the sentiment of female education than in the words …of Hannah More, a lady author of undisputed …fame, and that, too, not very much in her …favour. Female piety—"For my own part, I call …education, not that which smatters a woman …with accomplishments, but that which lends to …consolidate a firm and regular system of cha…racter, that which tends to form a friend, a …companion, and a wife. I call education, not …that which is made up of shreds and patches …of useless arts, but that which inculcates …principles, polishes taste, regulates temper, …cultivates reason, subdues the passions, directs …the feelings, habituates to reflection, trains to …self-denial, and more especially, that which …refers all actions, feelings, sentiments, tastes, …and pursuits, to the love and fear of God."

CAPTURE OF A CHINAMAN UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

(Alta California, December 1st.)

Several days since a burglary was committed in Costa & Co.'s cigar factory, on Sacramento-street, near Battery, and 5,000 cigars carried off. Suspicion rested on one Ah King, who was arrested by officers Woodruff and Irving at a late hour on Monday night on Sacramento-street. On the way to the station-house the prisoner suddenly broke from the officers' clutches, and took to his heels up a flight of steps in a frame building. On being hotly pursued by the officers he made his way to a skylight on the roof, where he unscrewed, lifting the sash in a trice. In this the officers were able to follow him, but with the result that when he came through On seeing the officers in the room, the Chinaman made a break to jump through an open hatchway. Before he had fairly got through officer Ingraham caught the fellow by his queue, holding him dangling in the air. This sort of business did not suit the fellow, and he resorted to a piece of strategy by which he proposed to loosen himself from the clutches of the law. Taking out a knife from his pocket he cut his queue, which remained in the officer's hand, who believed that his strong arm was sufficient to quell his lank, little dreaming of the Celestial's trick. At this the officer went through the hatch into another room, and Benjamin Shaw enveloped her in his arms, as she also wisely threw herself down in the middle of the yard, whence she, Shaw, was carried to the hospital. Mrs. Westwood, another inhabitant of Walsall street, more affrighted than her younger shipmates, ran terrified from point to point, suffering piteously from her ignited garments at length she fell down, alone at till at length she fell down, alone at the side gates which open into the public thoroughfare. There a workman, assisted by thoroughfare. There a workman, assisted by Mr. Brian, the manager of the establishment, tore off some of her burning apparel, and then took her, as tenderly as they were able, to the hospital. A young woman, twenty years of age, named Maria Jefferies, was the first to leap from the upper room through the flames which enclosed her, and which were entering
which enclosed her, and which were entering the door, escaping with a few burns. Another young woman, Emma Blakemore, throwing herself down, had her thigh broken, and was burnt. A boy named Harry Barking, not more than sixteen years old, met with a shocking death.
Engaged in another shop, he had gone into the lower store room to cleanse his hands with the spirits of ter. Whilst the women who were there shrieked in dismay, he cat terrified sunnied the street, and tried there, as he clambered the fence, to escape burning. But his place to the door, to escape burning. But his place of the fancied refuge became a sure place of death.
Out of the way of air, and encompassed with a very high temperature, he died of suffocation.
Had his position been known, it is quite possible that he might have been saved, a member of the police fire brigade, who had come to the place of the accident, having found the dead boy in the store room, at a period which was quite a quarter of an hour after the time at which it would have been possible for him to be got out. Of the surviving sufferers it is feared that at least two will die. The fire was short, and attended with only little disaster to the firm, for £100 will quite cover the damages, the two store rooms having been fireproof, and the flames having been confined to this portion of the premises.—Albion

A ROYAL VISIT OF SYMPATHY.—The Queen of England paid a private visit to the widow of Mr. Hull, who was her Majesty's messenger, and died suddenly in town. The Queen afterwards drove to Clewer churchyard to see his grave, and that of Mr. Woodward, the late librarian. Afterwards her Majesty entered the handsomely decorated little church, and, as it was getting dusk, the woman in charge had lighted the candles on the altar; her Majesty inquired why these candles were burning, and the woman explained that she had done so on learning that her Majesty would visit the church.—Court Journal.

DISTRESSING CASE.—An inquest was held recently respecting the death of Mrs. Annie Harriet Robinson, who was found dead in her bed. It appeared that Mrs. Robinson, who was about thirty-seven years of age, was the wife of a solicitor, partner in a firm in Half-moon-street, Piccadilly. She was separated from her husband, who allowed her £2. a week. She suffered from want of food, often only having a crust of bread and a cup of tea in a day. On the evening before her death she complained of her head, and as she was going upstairs she suddenly fell, but not very violently. The people with whom she lodged lifted her up, and put her in bed. She complained very much, but was quite sensible. The doctor said she had nothing to eat, and only 8½d. was found on her.
A juryman said that he had formerly known the lady, who then lived at the West-end in very affluent circumstances. The surgeon who made the post-mortem examination said there was no evidence of poison having been taken, and death resulted from a natural cause, accelerated by want. The jury returned a verdict to that effect. The husband was not present at the inquiry.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

HONGKONG, FRIDAY EVENING.

A fair amount of business has been done in the drug market for Bengal. The following are the ruling prices:—Patna $455, cash and on time; Benares, $423, cash and credit; Malwa, $365, for first class drug.

In Raw Cotton, sales have been effected of 150 bales fine new Bengal at $23.85 per picul, 100 bales Kurrachee at $20 per picul. Nothing has been done in piece goods or Salpetre. The market for the former at Shanghai and Improved, and some business was being done, but only such desires to lend funds, who were buying for delivery after Chinese New Year.
Steamboat Shares still continue to attract attention, sales having been made to-day at 39,
